The Department of Homeland Security is a “Man-Caused Disaster”

By Tom DeWeese

The uproar began a few weeks ago when the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) issued a nine page report, entitled “Right-wing Extremism: Current Economic and Political Climate Fueling Resurgence in Radicalization and Recruitment.” That official document of an agency of the United States Federal government said, “Right-wing extremism in the United States can be broadly divided into those groups, movements, and adherents that are primarily hate-oriented (based on hatred of particular religious, racial or ethnic groups), and those that are mainly anti-government, rejecting federal authority in favor of state or local authority, or rejecting government authority entirely. It may include groups and individuals that are dedicated to a single issue, such as opposition to abortion or immigration.”

The report also singled out returning veterans, calling them “Disgruntled.” The report expresses fear that some veterans, now trained in the art of military weapons, are being recruited by “right-wing extremists” to help these groups “boost” their violent capabilities. Of course the poster child for DHS is Oklahoma bomber Timothy McVeigh.

That news has been reported far and wide and most have heard it. So why am I bringing this up again? Because the full story has been only marginally covered, I’ll try to connect more of the dots.

After the report became public a firestorm of protest, DHS Secretary Janet Napolitano went on a whirlwind tour of the Sunday News shows. The basic gist of reports from those appearances was that she “apologized” for the report, admitting that it was a little over the top. In fact, she did nothing of the sort. She dismissed the firestorm of protest as simply “politicization,” and she hailed the program as necessary to combat “extremism.”

“It was an assessment, not an accusation,” she said. “To the extent veterans read it as an accusation... and apology is owed.” That, my friends is not an apology – it is a reprimand to people who she feels can’t read. Basically Napolitano was pandering to the vast number of American veterans. No mention was made to the millions of Americans who fall into the “right-wing extremists” category. She then went on to defend the report, saying it is part of an ongoing series of assessments to provide information to state, local and tribal law enforcement agencies on “violent radicalization” in the United States.

To prove her words, just two weeks after the outrage over this report, DHS released another one. On Tuesday, May 5th, The Washington Times reported on another leaked DHS document on “Extremism,” entitled, “Domestic Extremism Lexicon.” This one repeats the definition of “right-wing extremists” as detailed above then it analyzes the “threat” level of internet news websites, defining “alternative media” as, “a term used to describe various information sources that provide a forum for interpretations of events and issues that differ radically from those presented in mass media products and outlets.”

The two reports clearly weave a fine line between the terms “terrorists” with “extremists.” The opening line of the “Right-wing Extremism” Report says, “The DHS/Office of Intelligence and Analysis has no specific information that domestic right-wing terrorists are currently planning acts of violence, but right-wing extremists may be gaining new recruits by playing on their fears about several emergent issues.” Clearly, the DHS believes all that separates a terrorist from an extremist is an act of violence, but the belief system and motivation is the same. Says the report, the threat of violence is fueled by the downturn in the economy and the election of an Afro-American president and the threat of more gun control legislation.

So here (based on the report) is what DHS defines as extremist – bordering on terrorism: One concerned over the economy, loss of jobs, foreclosures; antagonism toward the Obama Administration (it’s racist); Criticism of free trade programs like NAFTA and the Security and Prosperity Partnership with Mexico and Canada (SPP); anti-abortion; oppose same-sex marriage; believe in the “end times;” stock pile food, ammunition and weapons; oppose illegal immigration; opposition to a New World Order; opposition to the United Nations; opposition to global governance; fear of Communist regimes; opposition to loss of US manufacturing to overseas nations; opposition to loss of US prestige; use of the Internet (or alternative media) to express an of these ideas.

Any one of those positions, if leading to any level of civil disobedience, would become a terrorist act, according to the DHS. But, consider this new word play from DHS concerning real terrorist acts (Muslim extremists who actually attacked the United States out of hate, bent on destruction) Those will no longer be called “terrorists,” or “acts of terrorism.” They are now to be called “man-caused disasters.” According to an interview Napolitano gave to a German magazine, the new phrase “demonstrates that we want to move away from the politics of fear, toward a policy of being prepared for all risks that occur.”

The new risk that DHS is preparing for, of course, is the government’s “fear” and “risk” of right wing opposition to the radical totalitarian policies of the Obama Administration. Americans have begun to fear their own government as the Administration is moving rapidly to nationalize American industry and banks, push for the confiscation of guns, establish a surveillance society with International ID cards, deeply integrate UN treaties into US law, stop efforts to drill American oil, create a new economic system based on the environment called Cap and Trade, and shut off access of the airways to programs that voice opposition to those policies. In short, the true mission of the Department of Homeland Security is to protect the Obama Administration and to destroy political opposition.

While denying any of that, the Obama Administration and its allies in Congress, including some “Judas-Goat” Republicans, who serve as their useful idiots, are moving rapidly to enact legislation to those ends. The latest legislation is a prime example of how carefully they have chosen their words such as “extremists” and “terrorist” to achieve their goals.

Rep. Perry King, a Republican, has sponsored HR 2159, the “Denying Firearms and Explosives to Dangerous Terrorists Act.” This bill will permit the attorney general to deny transfer of a firearm to any “known or suspected dangerous terrorist.” This bill would deny Second Amendment rights to any American suspected of a “terrorist” act (meaning Ron Paul supporters?).

Add HR 2159 to the Congressional hate crimes bill that destroys free speech, combined with efforts to create international health care data banks and renewed efforts to control Internet access, interconnected with the Missouri MIAC report that calls Ron Paul supporters potential terrorists, and you begin to get a clear picture of the radical, totalitarian agenda we once-free Americans now face. Just express your opposition to such policies and you will be forced out of society, unable to work, get health care, access the Internet, by a gun, or travel freely.

The Department of Homeland Security, as I’ve reported many times, is the greatest threat to American freedom. It should be destroyed and Secretary Napolitano fired. The DHS is a “man-caused disaster” that only free men can rectify.

THEY'VE DISCOVERED GOLD IN HELL...

Or How the Lie of Global Warming Became the Most Powerful Political Force in Human History

Folklore by Tom DeWeese

Not long ago a very talented salesman died and found himself approaching the Pearly Gates. As he drew closer he noticed there was a very long line of people waiting to enter and it wasn't moving. Impatient by nature, the salesman pushed his way to the front of the line and confronted a very harried St. Peter. "What's the hold up," asked the salesman. "There's a strike at the pedestal factory and no one may enter Heaven without one," explained St. Peter. "So, you'll just have to wait until the strike is settled and they start manufacturing more pedestals."

That didn't satisfy the salesman. Always looking to make a deal, he said to St. Peter, "Listen, I'm a pretty fair salesman. Let me make you this deal. Let me come into Heaven for just one hour. If I don't have my own pedestal by that time, I'll come out and stand in line like everyone else." St. Peter, happy to get just one person to stop yelling at him, agreed.

So, through the Pearly Gates went the salesman. He saw rows and rows of serene folks standing on their pedestals, happy and content. The salesman walked among the rows until finally he stopped and looked up at one occupant. "Pssst, hey you," he said. The pedestal occupant looked down and said, "What?" Whispered the salesman, "Don't tell anyone, but they've discovered gold in Hell. No one else knows and it can be yours for the taking." "Really," said the occupant. "Sure, go get it," said the salesman. With that, the occupant jumped off his pedestal and ran down the street. "Well, that was easy," said the salesman, as he climbed up on the abandoned pedestal.

And there he stood, content and serene, until he began to hear a commotion. Shouting grew louder. The startled salesman looked around, noticing people jumping off their pedestals and running down the streets of Heaven. As they passed the salesman they shouted, "They've discovered gold in Hell... they've discovered gold in Hell!" The shouts grew louder. The excitement grew as more and more took to the streets, heading toward the Pearly Gates.

Finally, several people tugged at the salesman's leg and shouted, "Come on... they've discovered gold in Hell." "Really," said the salesman. "Yes, come on," they shouted. And the salesman jumped off his pedestal and started running down the street with the rest of them.

As he ran through the Pearly Gates, St. Peter grabbed his arm and said, "Where are you going?" The now near-crazed salesman shouted, "They've discovered gold in Hell!"

"WAIT A MINUTE," said St. Peter, "YOU STARTED THAT RUMOR." "I KNOW I DID," said the salesman, "BUT... ALL THESE PEOPLE CAN'T BE WRONG!"

And that's the way the lie of global warming became the most powerful political force in human history.

The Coming Communist-American Auto Industry

Utter Horror from Tom DeWeese

Throughout our history, Americans have been inspired by many patriotic slogans such as “I have not yet begun to fight,” or “I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country,” or “Remember the Alamo.” I don’t believe the nation will find much inspiration in the Obama Administrations new one: “Remember the Yugo!”

Barack Obama promised the “nation of change,” “We cannot, must not, and we will not let our auto industry simply vanish.” Nope. He has other plans. He’s going to build Yugos. Well, Obama is too clever to actually say that, but Yugos will certainly be the result of the anticipated federal take-over of the American auto industry.

Americans should all remember the Yogo- the pride of communist Yugoslavia – the first commie car to endanger American highways back in the 1980’s. Small, affordable and easy on gas- the perfect modern car for our current economic and environmental crisis that the Obama Administration is hell-bent on perpetuating, regardless of economic or scientific fact.

Of course, most Yugos only ran long enough to get off the lot and into the driveway. Those lucky enough to drive them further just had to keep a bucket in the back seat for emergencies - when it was necessary to stop and pick up the parts that flew off when their Yugo hit a pot hole. In short, the Yugo was an international joke because it certainly did showcase the skills of communist workers in an industry controlled by communist bureaucrats.

Now, in the United States, where the car for the masses was born from the genius of Henry Ford’s free market assembly line, Barack Obama and the Democrat Congress have declared themselves the saviors of the American auto industry. They know what Americans need best! They know how to get Americans buying American cars and get the economy going again.

Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi (an auto-making genius) says Americans should drive smaller, more efficient vehicles. And she has the power to pass laws to make us do it – or at least the power to pass laws to make sure Chrysler and GM can only build the cars that Washington wants. And all Nancy and her gang of thugs in Congress have to do is pass stricter emission laws and even Ford, which hasn’t taken the Federal candy, will have to comply. And that saves the auto industry – how?

The whole point of the federal takeover of the auto industry, of course, is to enforce “climate change” restrictions on the industry. The code word is “cleaner” cars. That really means eliminating CO2 emissions to protect us from global warming. And it will be so much more efficient for government to dictate it directly to an industry it now owns than trying to argue with the pesky industry professionals who keep talking about what the buying public wants. Don’t they understand there is a crisis here?

There are, of course, three problems with that plan for the auto industry. First, since the 1970s, the federal government has been dictating emission standards, setting the bar higher and higher until today, American cars literally are so clean that they emit nearly zero pollution, and they can’t get any cleaner or more efficient. Second, the only way for cars to emit less CO2 is for cars to use less carbon-based fuel, and that doesn’t exist. And need we say it again, science is showing more and more evidence that there is no man-made global warming, so no matter how clean the car is made to run, it won’t make any difference and the regulations are completely unnecessary. Third, the American buying public doesn’t want the pesky little cars and won’t buy them. Detroit had better be very worried.

Obama’s scheme is not the first time government has tried dictating small cars to the American public. Back in the 1970s, as a result of Jimmy Carter’s man-made oil shortage, mandates were put out for smaller, more efficient Detroit cars. Remember the Pinto? As a result, all cars got smaller – even Cadillacs. Americans simply couldn’t squeeze their families into the things.

The Growing American Tyranny and How to Stop It

Freedom21 is the Next Step!

By Tom DeWeese

The Tea Parties have been held. The protests against the threats of a more powerful government have been made. Americans across the nation have made it clear – they fear our own government and they want to stop its headlong plunge toward totalitarianism. The question for all concerned Americans must be “now what do we do?”

What are the issues that are frightening the American people?

Massive growth of government. Outrageous spending. The growing invasion of personal privacy in a surveillance state. The loss of private property rights. The destruction of our schools. The threat of disarmament of American citizens. And, above all, politicians who won't listen. Of course these are only a sample of the threats we face - but you get the picture.

So what do we do now? Americans have to learn how to fight back before we can effectively tackle these threats. Where to do that? The immediate answer is the Freedom 21 national conference.

Why? Because there you will learn from the best. Former Presidential candidate Chuck Baldwin (called a potential terrorist by the Missouri State Government); Oklahoma State Senator Randy Brogdon (the man who may be Oklahoma's next Governor); Larry Pratt (leading the battle to stop gun confiscation); State Rep. Charles Key (the leading force behind the states' rights sovereignty movement); Marc Morano (the former Senate staffer who has done more to expose the lies behind the global warming swindle than any other American); State Rep. Sam Rohrer (the nation's leading opponent of Real ID and the creation of an international ID card); and Dr. Jeff Marrongelle (sounding the alarm against government takeover of personal choices in health freedom).

These leaders aren't just talking heads - they are activists - standing firm and fighting back. All of them will be at Freedom 21 - ready to share their expertise and help train you to fight for your rights.

And they will be joined by the most effective grassroots activists in the nation. Tom DeWeese (one of the nation's most outspoken property rights advocates); Michael Shaw (the nation's foremost expert on the dangers of Sustainable Development); Dr. Michael Coffman (global governance expert); Michael Chapman and Allen Quist (two of the nation's leading experts on the education crisis); Judith McGeary (sounding the alarm on the National Animal Identification System - NAIS); Mark Lerner (the nation's foremost expert on international ID); Craig Rucker (training students to fight back on college campuses); Dan Byfield (his activism has literally stopped progress on the Trans Texas Corridor); Pat Wood (Editor of The August Review revealing underground efforts to attack and damage freedom groups beyond the Missouri MIAC report and the Department of Homeland Security report) and Amanda Teegarden (her activism on the state level is setting the example for how local activists can fight back).

For ten years Freedom 21 has sounded the alarm, exposing the international agenda that has led to economic meltdown and massive government power. Now the warnings are quickly becoming reality, and Americans want answers. What more can we expect? What can we do? How can we fight back? Again, Freedom 21 will supply the answers.

The 10th Annual Freedom 21 National Conference will be held August 13 - 15, in Oklahoma City, at the Reed Conference Center adjacent to the Sheraton Midwest City hotel. The conference is sponsored by the American Policy Center and Freedom21 Inc. They are joined by 16 co-sponsoring groups, including Eagle Forum, Freedom Advocates, Ed Watch, Committee for a Constructive Tomorrow, Sovereignty International, American Land Foundation, Stewards of the Range, OK SAFE, American Heritage Research, Gun Owners of America, Camp American, National Center for Constitutional Studies, Institute for Principled Policy, Liberty Coalition, Constitutional Alliance, and The August Review. These eighteen organizations form a loose coalition dedicated to advancing the principles of freedom in the 21st Century.

The message of Freedom 21 is unique to every

Freedom21 Conference Sponsors National Vote for Freedom's Heroes Award

By Tom DeWeese

The Freedom21 National Conference, to be held August 13 - 15 at the Sheraton Midwest City Conference Center, Oklahoma City, OK, will award two "Freedom's Heroes" awards during the event. To select the winners, Freedom21 has established an online ballot at the conference website. Everyone is encouraged to vote. Freedom21 is also asking radio programs and Internet News sites to promote the award selection in order to get the widest vote possible. The awards will be presented to the winners at the conference banquet.

There are two categories for the Freedom's Heroes Awards. First is to recognize an outstanding elected official who has stood up against his/her colleagues to protect our freedoms. The other will go to an outstanding, non-elected activist who has taken the fight on his/her shoulders, and defended liberty at all costs.

In nominating the candidates for the Freedom's Heroes Awards, Freedom21 deliberately chose not to nominate many of the well known and perhaps obvious leaders in the freedom movement, choosing instead to focus on lesser known grassroots and local leaders who had the courage to face down their adversaries and perhaps sacrifice personal safety and careers for their defense of liberty. There are thousands of such heroes across the nation. We wanted to honor them.

Nominees for the elected officials Freedom's Heroes award include:

Sheriff Joe Arpaio, Maricopa County, Arizona Sheriff, for his views that prisoners are in jail to be punished and for his aggressive stand against illegal immigration.

Oklahoma State Senator Randy Brogdon, the legislator who has said, "The Trans Texas Corridor will not cross the Oklahoma Border." Senator Brogdon has become one of the nation's most effective legislators to recognize dangers and stop them at the legislative level.

Michigan State Representative John Garfield, a major opponent and leader in the battle to stop gun control. He has a passion for the Bill of Rights.

Arizona State Senator Karen Johnson (former), a powerful voice in the Arizona legislature, sounding the alarm against Arizona's attempts to create its own union with Mexico, standing firm to stop amnesty for illegals and against state participation in Real ID.

Oklahoma State Representative Charles Key, for 20 years he has called for strong state sovereignty rights, now leading the nation-wide effort to get states to defend the 10th Amendment against a powerful federal takeover.

Pennsylvania State Representative Sam Rohrer, who has become one of the nation's strongest voices against the creation of an International ID system of big brother surveillance.

Mayor Mae Smith, of Holland Texas, the first mayor to stand up to the Texas Department of Transportation in opposition to the Trans Texas Corridor. She recruited numerous state and local leaders to join her in blocking its path, slowing down, if not stopping, the project.

Nominees for the non-elected Freedom's Heroes award include:

Bob Basso, released an inspiring YouTube video portraying Thomas Paine to rally the nation to take action against misdeeds and to support Constitutionally-guaranteed rights - calling on Americans to stand up and defend their rights.

Steve Bierfeldt, at the young age of 25 has proven great courage and strength of his convictions by standing alone in a windowless airport room, refusing to be intimidated by TSA agents as they interrogated him, threatened arrest and demanded answers to personal questions they had no right to ask.

Don Casey, for years, as a volunteer, has alerted the citizens of Alabama to the dangers of land grab policies like Sustainable Development, producing an impressive library of educational (Cont'd on page 9) videos and standing against policies that infringe on private property rights.

Norm Davis, one of the most effective state leaders as head of the grassroots activist group, Take Back Kentucky. He has created near unprecedented influence in the Kentucky legislature to safeguard constitutionally-protected freedoms.

Paul Garfield, a local activist in Michigan, who has been involved with United Seniors Association (now called USA Next), The 60 Plus Association, and Christian Seniors, he has also been an activist in support of Gun Rights.

Zeldon Nelson, Director of the National Center for Constitutional Studies, has led the effort to distribute more than two million copies of the Constitution to American citizens. He has also led the effort to provide materials for thousands of school districts to use on Constitution Day to educate students about American freedoms.

Ralph and Marcia Snyder, started the first sub-regional coordination commission to stand up and fight the Trans Texas Corridor (TTC). Their efforts led to eight more counties standing up to the Texas Department of Transportation against the TTC, effectively killing the master plan.

Kevin Starrett, head of the Oregon Firearms Association, has written a book (Oregon's Gun Laws) and is an Oregon grassroots leader, standing firm for a variety of freedom-related issues.

These are the nominees for this year's Freedom's Heroes Award. The nominations were made by the cosponsoring groups who come together every year to produce the Freedom21 National Conference. These groups include, the American Policy Center, Freedom21, Inc, Eagle Forum, Freedom Advocates, Committee for a Constructive Tomorrow (CFACT), ED Watch, American Land Foundation, Stewards of the Range, The August Review, Gun Owners of America, Camp American, Constitutional Alliance, American Heritage Research, Institute of Principled Policy, National Center for Constitutional Studies, OK-SAFE, Sovereignty International, and the Liberty Coalition.

Internet news sites, radio programs, organizations and publications are invited and encouraged to help Freedom21 choose this year's first annual Freedom's Heroes Award recipients by discussing the project, or establishing a link for the voting on their web sites. Special logos are available.

For more information or interviews for the Freedom's Heroes Awards, contact Tom DeWeese, Conference Coordinator, 540-341-8911.

other conference in the nation. While many try to explain the reasons for the economic crisis and the strife and pain many of us are experiencing, Freedom 21 goes to the very root of the problem. Each of these issues can be traced back to international policy, specifically Agenda 21 and its policy of Sustainable Development - a top down government control operating through non-elected regional governments and planning boards. The entire agenda is based on enforcing climate change policy.

Freedom 21 connects the dots from Agenda 21 to federal policies, like energy, air and water. And the dots connect further to state legislatures and policies like the Trans Texas Corridor and immigration. And they go further to local policies affecting city councils and county commissions as they deal with Smart Growth and development. And there's more to the agenda, including the radical changes in our public education system and the growing threat of a big brother surveillance society. Americans know something is very wrong in our society, but most don't understand what it is. No other conference explains it like Freedom 21.

Theme for this year's conference is "The Growing American Tyranny and How to Stop It." You will not hear this message at any other conference in the nation. Every concerned American needs to understand the threat we face and to learn how to fight back.

Sign up today to get the $50 early bird savings. Simply go to www.freedom21.org to see the full conference schedule and to register. Or call the American Policy Center at 540-341-8911. If you want to help preserve our nation's liberty, then Freedom 21 is not only the most important event this year - it's the critical next step.

That's when the environmentalists' nightmare began. To get around the hated smaller cars, Americans started buying Sports Utility Vehicles (SUVs). Back then they were simply called trucks. The old fashioned, market-based Detroit auto makers knew a good customer when they saw one and they started improving the trucks to be more family oriented. And the SUV revolution was on.

Today, almost every American family has one. And the government environmentalists hate it. They have been inventing rules and regulations ever since to try to get Americans out of the hated SUVs. They have tried to raise gas prices to make them unusable- didn't work. They have offered tax incentives to get us to abandon them – didn't work. So now they have just taken over Detroit. Now they will just dictate the cars Detroit can make.

Get ready America. The Corvette, Chevy Camaro, Dodge Viper, Dodge Challenger R/T, Mustang, Cadillac CTS and the Hummer are all on the Obama chopping block – even though that's what Americans want to buy. It doesn't matter anymore. We now have government-controlled industry dictated by those who do everything through political agenda. They have a vision and it looks a lot like the Yugo.

American Tears...

Whenever great crisis overtakes a nation, be it war, natural disaster or political oppression, some talented patriots begin to express their fear and sorrow in poem and song. There are many such efforts underway in our sad nation today. You'll find them on YouTube, magazines and a few on the radio.

Below is one such effort from fellow patriot and DeWeese Report reader Holley Simmons of Toms River, New Jersey. Holley tells me she's looking for a "name" singer to record this song. If interested, I'll provide her contact information. Enjoy.

COME BACK TO ME AMERICA

By Holley Simmons - (Copyrighted) Reprinted with permission

Where have you gone America
I truly love you so
You've lost your soul America
For not so long ago

That spangled banner proudly waved
From sea to shining sea –
To some that flag is just a rag,
But not to you and me.

In times gone by your promises
Were words as good as gold,
And men stood tall and took the fall
There honor to uphold –

And "Duty, Honor, Country"
Were words received so well –
But now that creed is trampled on,
By who I cannot tell.

As I remember you believed
Great faith was no offence
For when your fathers faced defeat
They called on Providence

You met the charge and conquered all
When vict'ry was no sin –
Now stalking shadows follow you –
The enemy within.

Bring back your heroes from the mists
Who boldly led the way –
They knew your sacred heritage
And never would betray –

Come back to me America
For with your soul I cry
I love you so America
And will not say "good-bye!"

Truth” – some of them 4 times in 4 different classes – will be nearly eligible for AARP (age 50) retirement group membership by the time warming resumes if these new studies turn out to be correct. (Editor's Note: Claims that warming will “resume” due to explosive heat in the “pipeline” have also been thoroughly debunked.

Climate Models ‘Violate Basic Principles of Forecasting’

Since real world observations are not supporting the alleged climate catastrophe, climate fear promoters are instead touting unverified computer models predicting doom 50 or 100 years from now. But even the UN admits the models are flawed and do not account for “half the variability in the climate” and they are instead referred to as “story lines” not even “predictions.” In addition, top forecasting experts say the models violate the basic principles of forecasting.

Despite the mounting scientific case against a man-made climate crisis, many, like President Obama's Energy Secretary Steven Chu, still seem to believe that computer model predictions of decades or 100 years from now are some sort of “evidence” of a looming climate catastrophe.

‘Climate Change Issue is About to Fall Apart’

Many scientists are now realizing that the UN IPCC and the promoters of man-made climate fear are in a “panic” about the lack of global warming, the growing number of scientific defectors and sinking public support. South African UN Scientist Dr. Will Alexander wrote in March 2009, “The whole climate change issue is about to fall apart... Heads will roll!”

It is no wonder that the environmental movement is urging its troops to no longer use the term “global warming,” as temperatures fail to cooperate.

Instead, climate change or “global weirding” -- as New York Times columnist Thomas Friedman has proposed – are preferred. It is no wonder, that with climate change or “global weirding,” any weather event can now be linked to man-made global warming. Drought, flood, storms, tornado, hurricane? Simply more evidence of “global weirding.” Heat waves, record cold, blizzards? Even more evidence of “global weirding.” Therefore, anything that happens is further “proof” of man-made global warming.

Global Warming Compared to ‘Astrology’

This shift in terminology and tactics by the warming fear promoters has lead to a top Japanese scientist -- Kanya

Kusano of the Japan Agency for Marine-Earth Science & Technology -- to declare global warming models and fear promotion akin to “astrology.”

After all, if every weather event that happens fits your global warming hypothesis or theory, the theory cannot be invalidated by real world observations or data. Climate fear promoters are now morphing to the level of the daily horoscope in your local newspaper. Horoscopes are worded in such a vague manner that essentially anything that happens to you that day can be touted as “proof” the horoscope was correct.

UK Professor Philip Stott has mocked today's climate fears by comparing such fears to ancient civilizations. “From the Babylon of Gilgamesh to the post-Eden of Noah, every age has viewed climate change cataclysmically, as retribution for human greed and sinfulness,” Stott, an emeritus professor of Biogeography from the University of London wrote. The clock is ticking for the promoters of man-made climate fear as more and more scientists dissent from climate fears and peer-reviewed studies, real world observations and data continue to refute the entire basis for alarm.

Democrats the New ‘Deniers?’

President Obama's and the Congressional Democrat's hesitation to move forward on global warming cap-and-trade bills that will raise energy prices during a massive economic downturn may force continued delays in moving the legislation. Curious voters will soon be asking their representatives in Washington the following basic questions:

1. What impact will this bill have on temperatures? (Answer: “Meaningless”)
2. What will the bill cost? (Answer: Trillions)
3. Why are you voting for a bill that will have huge economic impacts and harm the poor and seniors on fixed incomes the most -- but will not have a measurable climate impact?
4. Why are more and more scientists publicly rejecting man-made climate fears and why has the Earth failed to warm as predicted?

The answers to the above questions will likely cause massive angst with many Democrats in rust belt states and will probably force further delays in Congressional climate action. But such Democratic delays in moving the legislation may not play well with environmental and climate activists. How long before President Obama and the Democrats are called “deniers” and “delayers” by their friends in the activist community? Stay tuned..

Climate Depot Editorial: We would all be doomed if we actually faced climate 'crisis' - Cap-and-trade equals all economic pain for no climate gain

Science continues to turn against man-made warming fear promoters

By Marc Morano

The new analysis of Congressional cap-and-trade bill showing the temperature impact to be 'scientifically meaningless' is consistent with many previous studies showing that proposed "solutions" to man-made global warming are nothing more than all economic pain for no climate gain.

If we did face a man-made climate catastrophe and the United Nations proposals and Congressional cap-and-trade were our only hope -- we would all be doomed!

Many attempt to tout Congressional or UN carbon trading bills as an "insurance" policy against global warming in case the skeptics are wrong about the science. But a simple question to ask is: Would you purchase fire insurance on your home that had a huge up front premium for virtually no payout if you home burned down? If you answered YES to such an "insurance" policy, then Congress has a deal for you with their cap-and-trade legislation.

This new temperature analysis of Waxman-Markey cap-and-trade climate bill, comes at a time when key House Democrats are now realizing the cost (and futility) of attempting to control the Earth's thermostat. In addition, even the two strongest proponents of man-made global warming fears -- NASA's James Hansen and UK's James Lovelock -- are now ridiculing the Congressional cap-and-trade approach as "ineffectual" and "verging on a gigantic scam." Remember, these are the words of scientists who believe in a looming human caused climate "crisis."

Current polling data reveals that the American people "get it" when it comes to man-made global warming fears. Given the wealth of recent polling data showing American's are growing increasingly skeptical, it is hard to believe any Congressmen or Senators are hearing any clamor from voters to "act" to "solve" global warming. In fact, the opposite is true, voters are rebelling against the unfounded climate fears and the so-called "solutions" in growing numbers.

'Most Significant Revenue Generating Proposal of Our Time'

Despite the American people's rejection of warming fears and climate taxes, Congress may persist in pushing them for other non-scientific reasons. Hint, hint.

Americans are becoming aware that the debate is not "over" as more than 700 prominent international scientists publicly dissenting, including many who are reversing their views on climate fears and declaring themselves skeptical. Americans are becoming aware that there has been no significant global warming since 1995, no warming since 1998 and global cooling for the past few years.

Skeptical scientists generally rally around several key points. 1) The Earth is currently well within natural climate variability. 2) Almost all climate fear is generated by unproven computer model predictions. 3) An abundance of peer-reviewed studies continue to debunk rising CO2 fears and, 4) "Consensus" has been manufactured for political, not scientific purposes.

In addition, there has been "no evidence for accelerated sea-level" according to the Royal Netherlands Meteorological Institute and failure of the oceans to warm and Antarctic ice continues to grow. Even the poster child of the warming fear campaign, the Arctic is not cooperating.

New Zealand Climate Scientist Chris de Freitas revealed on May 1, 2009 that "warming and CO2 are not well correlated." de Freitas added, "the effect of CO2 on global temperature is already close to its maximum. Adding more has an ever decreasing effect."

'Climate Fears RIP... for 30 years!?!'

New peer-reviewed scientific studies now predict a continued lack of global warming for up to three decades as natural climate factors dominate.
